when the guns are silenced those who have survived armed conflict need food water shelter the means to earn a living and the promise of safety and a return to civil order meeting these needs while sustaining peace requires more than simply having governmental structures in place it requires good governance natural resources are essential to sustaining people and peace in post conflict countries but governance failures often jeopardize such efforts this book examines the theory practice and often surprising realities of post conflict governance natural resource management and peacebuilding in fifty conflict affected countries and territories it includes thirty nine chapters written by more than seventy researchers diplomats military personnel and practitioners from governmental intergovernmental and nongovernmental organizations the book highlights the mutually reinforcing relationship between natural resource management and good governance natural resource management is crucial to rebuilding governance and the rule of law combating corruption improving transparency and accountability engaging disenfranchised populations and building confidence after conflict at the same time good governance is essential for ensuring that natural resource management can meet immediate needs for post conflict stability and development while simultaneously laying the foundation for a sustainable peace drawing on analyses of the close relationship between governance and natural resource management the book explores lessons from past conflicts and ongoing reconstruction efforts illustrates how those lessons may be applied to the formulation and implementation of more effective governance initiatives and presents an emerging theoretical and practical framework for policy makers researchers practitioners and students governance natural resources and post conflict peacebuilding is part of a global initiative to identify and analyze lessons in post conflict peacebuilding and natural resource management the project has generated six books of case studies and analyses with contributions from practitioners policy makers and researchers other books in this series address high value resources land water livelihoods and assessing and restoring natural resources for most post conflict countries the transition to peace is daunting in countries with high value natural resources including oil gas diamonds other minerals and timber the stakes are unusually high and peacebuilding is especially challenging resource rich post conflict countries face both unique problems and opportunities they enter peacebuilding with an advantage that distinguishes them from other war torn societies access to natural resources that can yield substantial revenues for alleviating poverty compensating victims creating jobs and rebuilding the country and the economy evidence shows however that this opportunity is often wasted resource rich countries do not have a better record in sustaining peace in fact resource related conflicts are more likely to relapse focusing on the relationship between high value natural resources and peacebuilding in post conflict settings this book identifies opportunities and strategies for converting resource revenues to a peaceful future its thirty chapters draw on the experiences of forty one researchers and practitioners as well as the broader literature and cover a range of key issues including resource extraction revenue sharing and allocation and institution building the book provides a concise theoretical and practical framework that policy makers researchers practitioners and students can use to understand and address the complex interplay between the management of high value resources and peace high value natural resources and post conflict peacebuilding is part of a global initiative led by the environmental law institute eli the united nations environment programme unep the university of tokyo and mcgill university to identify and analyze lessons in natural resource management and post conflict peacebuilding the project has generated six edited books of case studies and analyses with contributions from practitioners policy makers and researchers other books in the series address land water livelihoods assessing and restoring natural resources and governance this study discusses the history of indian policy in canada and examines the areas of justice policy leadership culture and economy as factors in self government in recent years leaderless social movements have proliferated around the globe from north africa and the middle east to europe the americas and east asia some of these movements have led to impressive gains the toppling of authoritarian leaders the furthering of progressive policy and checks on repressive state forces they have also been at times derided by journalists and political analysts as disorganized and ineffectual or suppressed by disoriented and perplexed police forces and governments who fail to effectively engage them activists too struggle to harness the potential of these horizontal movements why have the movements which address the needs and desires of so many not been able to achieve lasting change and create a new more democratic and just society some people assume that if only social movements could find new leaders they would return to their earlier glory where they ask are the new martin luther kings rudi dutschkes and stephen bikos with the rise of right wing political parties in many countries the question of how to organize democratically and effectively has become increasingly urgent although today s leaderless political organizations are not sufficient a return to traditional centralized forms of political leadership is neither desirable nor possible instead as michael hardt and antonio negri argue familiar roles must be reversed leaders should be responsible for short term tactical action but it is the multitude that must drive strategy in other words if these new social movements are to achieve meaningful revolution they must invent effective modes of assembly and decision making structures that rely on the broadest democratic base drawing on ideas developed through their well known empire trilogy hardt and negri have produced in assembly a timely proposal for how current large scale horizontal movements can develop the capacities for political strategy and decision making to effect lasting and democratic change we have not yet seen what is possible when the multitude assembles this paper considers methods for taxing the income of the affluent much of this income is unrealized capital gains that escapes tax conventional individual income tax changes cannot capture this income and corporate taxes cannot target the wealthy other options are estate and gift taxes taxation of gains on an accrual basis and a wealth tax accrual taxation of capital gains most closely captures untaxed income can be targeted to the wealthy and appears to be feasible if wealth and accrual taxation are deemed too difficult a combination of conventional changes and taxing gains at death are options this book proposes that the family in nature is the correct political model for democratic government using a sociological model for government the family has a common morality civil morality that its members agree to and believe in some individual wealth and some commonwealth this is not a monarchy the united states and other countries should have a president with a limited term and the legislature should always have more political power than the president the legislature should have the most power because they are the voice of the people simply put more minds with collaboration are better than one when developing government policies in a family members have some individual wealth but they also have some shared wealth commonwealth that benefits the family as a whole dr martin luther king jr believed in a similar government system as i show in this book some other philosophers have talked about the family as a model for government but they did not break it down into a common morality individual wealth and commonwealth these enlightenment philosophers are discussed in this book as well proposals are made in the book on how to develop commonwealth co op programs to do things like help the elderly help the poor with food shelter and job training provide programs for the disabled develop commonwealth co op low cost housing develop co op daycare etc in addition developing and teaching a common civil morality based on the moral character traits taught in positive psychology is discussed in the book some civil morality already exists in the declaration of independence the house ethics rules and the universal declaration of human rights partially developed by eleanor roosevelt etc prayers also are common in congress and state houses however one religion should not be chosen for civil morality as this would violate the first amendment civil morality should state like the declaration of independence that all peoples and cultures are created equal civil morality should also use as much secular wording as possible which is why the moral character traits of positive psychology should be used to guide it these are traits such as love kindness empathy social awareness and intelligence honesty bravery self control etc the book touches on things such as universal healthcare saying it is needed because it aligns with the moral traits of positive psychology and keeps costs down in the long run see what has happened in europe and developing a pro peace foreign relations plan although if attacked a democracy can defend itself the argument of chief justice robert h jackson that nations must also outlaw preemptive wars also is discussed in the pro peace plan in this book jackson arrived at this conclusion after prosecuting the nazis at nuremberg there are many other ideas about the family model for democratic governments in the book i hope you like it
