pilgrims from three major religions judaism christianity and islam each of which is heir to old testament theological tradition flock to jerusalem because many of their most sacred memories are centered there this study of ancient israel s sacred literature on the topic of jerusalem is therefore not a speculative exercise it is a subject of immediate relevance to both the religious and political realities of present day jerusalem jerusalem is not just another city that illustrates the conflict between interests of professional planners and competing political perspectives it is the holy city with a history of some 3 000 years moreover numerous layers of historical remains have importance for intense and competitive religious and national interests israelis claim it as the capital of their country and palestinians want it or part of it as the capital of their not yet created state jerusalem is also a place where more than 700 000 people live and the center of a metropolitan area with more than twice that number along with religious and national interests there are the customary conflicts between what various groups property developers politicians professional planners neighborhood residents and environmental activists want to do with the land politics and planning in the holy city describes and analyzes the tensions between politics and planning the authors tackle the economic social and political contexts that shape conflicts such problems include deciding what should be called jerusalem and difficulties surrounding the construction of a defense barrier to protect israelis from palestinian terrorists in the framework of a multicultural city where 30 to 40 percent of its residents are palestinians there is dissent over locating rail lines to the city as some interests want them here there or nowhere and over building a light rail line within a city already crowded and beset with conflicting interests the creation of a football stadium is another venue for conflict as many religious jews view sports as a threat to their way of life issues include locating a site for housing new immigrants as few jerusalemites want large numbers of newcomers in their neighborhoods and deciding which sites merit preservation in a city with many deserving candidates but severely limited resources this volume will attract urban specialists as well as those concerned with larger political issues
